

A Proximal Gradient Splitting Method for Solving Convex Vector Optimization Problems

Ray Victor Guimarães Serra

Janeiro 2020

In this talk, we will present a proximal gradient splitting method for solving nondifferentiable vector optimization problems. The convergence analysis is carried out when the objective function is the sum of two convex functions where one of them is assumed to be continuously differentiable.